As community and technical colleges continue to meet the needs of adult learners, there is a need to continuously update how instruction is provided to this category of learners. Generations change and learning styles vary so looking to continuously improve instruction is a necessary step the college should be taking. David Dailey will provide research highlighting best practices for the classroom based on his graduate studies work in Educational Leadership.

Mesabi Range College Dean of Student Services since 2007, David Dailey has worked in various roles in Student Services, bringing years of experience focusing on helping students reach their educational goals. Dean Dailey is working on his Ed.D. in Educational Leadership from St. Mary’s University.
